To whom it may concern,

As the head JV coach at Canyon View High School, I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Cody Carmichael. When Cody walked on the field his freshman year you could see he was bigger and stronger than most of the kids who were there. I had no idea what to expect from him, but he quickly won me over with his work ethic and determination. The two of us quickly formed a great player coach bond. We spent every practice in the spring, summer, and fall working on his game. He never took time off, he's always the first one to help set up for practice, and always the last one there helping to break everything down.

Cody's hard work and willingness to do whatever the coaches asked him to do is why he became one of my favorite players to coach. He has one of the strongest arms in our program. In addition to being one of the best players on his team last year he was a valuable member of the team as a pitcher and catcher.

A few of the things I admire most about Cody is his character, he is honest and he is trustworthy. He is extremely coachable, follows the rules, and respects his teammates and coaches. Aside from all the great things he does on the field he's an even better person off the field. He's a great student with great grades, and is always volunteering with his younger brother's sports teams, and is always offering to assist people in his community. He's the type of kid you always enjoy being around. As a coach, he's one of those kids you wish you had a whole team of.

Cody is an outstanding young man who wants to continue his education at the next level. His work ethic and integrity would be an asset to any college program. Please accept Cody as a recipient of any scholarships that are available. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Best regards,

Richard Hitchner
